

NYDailyNews.com
DAILY NEWS

Sepetember 10, 2011

PROTECTION IN THE POCKET

Offensive linemen have gone out of fashion. Well, NuVo Condoms thinks they have anyway.

The condom company, which will officially hit the market this spring, is offering its "protective" services to the quarterbacks across the NFL. NuVo will send the quarterback that was sacked the most each week a complimentary supply of its product to better protect them in the future.

"All NFL quarterbacks should know that if your team can't keep you safe, The NuVo Protection Plan can always lend a helping hand," the company released in a statement.

Chicago QB Jay Cutler was sacked more than any other quarterback in the league last year, getting knocked to the ground for a loss 52 times. Cutler was all set to marry reality star Kristin Cavallari, but the two recently broke off their engagement, meaning Cutler might like the free protection after all. Mark Sanchez and Eli Manning finished in the middle and back of the pack, respectively, in sack totals last year.

NuVo now allows users to order free samples of the condoms online and, according to its website, is planning for a promotion with the NBA as well, so, you better get some while you can.